

Printers & Interface Cables

The direct recording of data from scientific instruments is an important requirement in quality control. A range of printers is available for use with Bellingham + Stanley refractometers and polarimeters, depending on the application and model of instrument. For users adopting Good Laboratory Practice and with instruments that have a real-time clock, the CBM-910 is the recommended printer.

For users requiring a GLP record from an instrument that does not support date/time printing, the DP-24 may be used, as it incorporates its own clock.
